the power of their united appeal Let me press the analogy a little farther. The world today is appealing to its statesmen, its sociologists, its humanitarians, and its religious leaders for solution of appalling problems. I want to hope that the power and universality of that appeal will inspire strong, devout, consecrated men and women to seek out the solution, and, in the light of their wisdom to earny it to all man-

We exalt anew our pride that we have stood with them in the strug gle for civilization, and have touched elbows with them in the march of progress.

Understands Sacrifices. It has been your fortune, Mme. Curie, to accomplish an immortal work for humanity. We are not without understanding of the trials and sacrifices which have been the price of your achievement. We know something of the fervid purpose and deep devotion which inspired you. We bring to you the meed of honor which is due to pre-eminence in science, schol arship, research and humani-tarianism. But with it all we bring something more. We lay at your feet the testimony of that love which all the generations of men have been wont to bestow upon noble woman, the unselfish wife, the devoted mother. If, in-deed, these simpler and commoner relations of life could not keep you from great attainments in the realms of science and intellect, it is also true that the zeal, ambition and unswerving purpose of a lofty career could not bar you from splendidly doing all the plain but worthy tasks which fall to every woman's lot.

A number of years ago a reader of one of your earlier works on radioactive substances noted the observation that there was much divergence of opinion as to whether the energy of radioactive sub-stances is created within those substances themselves, or is gathered to them from outside sources, and then diffused from them. The question suggested an answer which is doubtless hopelessly unwhich is doubtiess nopelessly un-scientific. I have liked to believe in an analogy between the spirit-ual and the physical world. I have been very sure that that which I may call the radioactive soul, or spirit, or intellect-call soul, or spirit, or intellect—call it what you may choose—must first gather to itself, from its surroundings, the power that it afterward radiates in beneficence to those near it. I believe it is the sum of many inspirations, borne is a proper souls, which applies in on great souls, which enables them to warm, to scintillate, to radiate, to illumine and serve those about them. I am so sure of this explanation for the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will appear of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will appear of the radioactive personality at the explanation of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will appear to the radioactive personality and the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set of the radioactive personality that I feel somehow a conviction that science will be a set o one day establish a like explanation for radioactivity among in-animate substances.

Sees Analogy for World. Perhaps, in my innocence of cience. I am airily rushing in science. I am airily rushing in where scientists fear to tread. But where scientists fear to tread. But I am trying to express to you my conviction that the great things achieved by great minds would never have been wrought without the inspiration of an appealing need for them. That appeal comes as inspiration successful effort, and success in turn enables the outgiving of benefits to millions whose only contribution has been
